Moral injury is a psychological trauma that occurs when a person violates their own moral code or witnesses the violation of others' moral codes. It can be caused by a variety of experiences, including combat, sexual assault, and other traumatic events.

Symptoms of moral injury can include:

- Guilt
- Shame
- Anger

- Isolation
- Betrayal
- Difficulty trusting others
- Difficulty forming relationships
- Substance abuse
- Suicidal thoughts

DTB provides a variety of services to help women veterans cope with moral injury, including:

- Individual counseling
- Group counseling
- Workshops
- Retreats
- Resources
- Community
- Empowerment
- Advocacy

DTB is committed to providing a safe and supportive environment for women veterans to heal from moral injury.
