A Milliner's Journey

Eugenia Kim is one of the world's most renowned milliners, known for her exquisite hats that have adorned the heads of celebrities and everyday women alike. In her new memoir, Journey of Hats, Kim takes readers on a journey through her creative process and the world of hat making.

The book begins with Kim's early childhood in Korea, where she developed a love of hats and fashion. She then traces her journey to New York City, where she studied design at the Fashion Institute of Technology and launched her own millinery business.

Kim's memoir is filled with fascinating stories about her experiences in the fashion industry. She shares her insights on the creative process, the importance of craftsmanship, and the challenges of running a successful business. She also offers a glimpse into the lives of some of her famous clients, including Michelle Obama, Oprah Winfrey, and Sarah Jessica Parker.

Throughout the book, Kim's passion for hats is evident. She writes about the joy of creating something beautiful and unique, and the satisfaction of seeing her hats worn by women who feel confident and stylish.

The Art of Hat Making

In addition to her personal journey, Kim also provides a detailed look at the art of hat making. She explains the different techniques involved in creating a hat, from blocking and shaping to trimming and embellishing. She also discusses the different types of materials used in hat making, and the importance of fit and proportion.

Kim's writing is clear and engaging, and her descriptions of the hat making process are both informative and inspiring. She makes it clear that hat making is a complex and demanding craft, but also one that is incredibly rewarding.

A Must-Read for Hat Lovers

Journey of Hats is a must-read for anyone interested in fashion, design, or the art of craftsmanship. Kim's writing is both personal and informative, and her passion for hats is contagious. This book is a celebration of beauty, creativity, and the power of a well-made hat.
