I've always loved running. It's a way to challenge myself, push my limits, and see the world. So, when I came up with the idea to run a marathon in every country on Earth, I knew it would be a challenge, but I was also excited about the adventure.

I started my journey in 2015, and I've been running ever since. I've run marathons in some of the most beautiful and challenging places on Earth, from the Sahara Desert to the Great Wall of China. I've also run marathons in some of the most dangerous and remote places on Earth, from war-torn countries to countries with no roads.

Along the way, I've met some amazing people and had some incredible experiences. I've learned about different cultures, traditions, and ways of life. I've also learned a lot about myself and what I'm capable of.

Running a marathon in every country on Earth is a dream come true. It's a challenge that has pushed me to my limits, but it's also an adventure that has changed my life. I've seen the world in a way that most people never will, and I've met some amazing people along the way.

If you're looking for an adventure, I encourage you to give running a try. It's a great way to challenge yourself, push your limits, and see the world.

Here are some of the highlights of my journey:

- Running the Sahara Desert Marathon in Morocco

- Running the Great Wall of China Marathon in China
- Running the Antarctic Ice Marathon in Antarctica
- Running the North Pole Marathon in the Arctic
- Running the Everest Base Camp Marathon in Nepal
- Running the Our Book Library Jungle Marathon in Peru
- Running the Great Rift Valley Marathon in Kenya
- Running the Angkor Wat Marathon in Cambodia
- Running the Machu Picchu Marathon in Peru
- Running the Inca Trail Marathon in Peru

I've also learned a lot about myself along the way. Here are some of the things I've learned:

- I'm stronger than I thought I was.
- I can do anything I set my mind to.
- The world is a beautiful place, and there are amazing people everywhere.
- It's important to follow your dreams, no matter how crazy they may seem.

I hope my story will inspire you to pursue your own dreams. If you have a dream, don't give up on it. Anything is possible if you set your mind to it.
